

ClerkNet offers new Notification Feature

Want to know the progress of a case without taking the time to research the status? ClerkNet now offers a “case watch” feature. Here’s how it works: The user simply logs in to ClerkNet, opens the case of interest and clicks a button one time to receive notification of filings. This will register your interest in the case and you will receive an email each time a document is filed in the case of interest. In addition, the email will contain a link to the document. There are two caveats: One, you must be an active e-filer ; Two, cases must not be confidential by law.

ClerkNet is a secured system that allows remote access to court case information and documents to those who are authorized under the law and administrative orders of the Court. The security to provide ClerkNet is managed through the e-filing system. Therefore only those e-filing may take advantage of remote access.

It is expected that both Counsels for the Plaintiff and Defendant will find this feature extremely helpful. Because ClerkNet is not limited to the attorney of record, it is expected that this case watch feature will also serve attorneys who do not represent the parties, but have an interest in the progress of a case.

The next enhancement scheduled to be delivered by this summer will allow attorneys of record to view confidential matters.

Subscription to the notification feature in ClerkNet is case specific. For more information on how to register for ClerkNet and subscribe to the notification feature, go to www.SarasotaClerk.com or contact the Clerk of the Circuit Court at clerkinfo@scgov.net.
